

Social and Personal

Mr. and Mrs. James McDonald Wellford returned to Richmond yesterday afternoon, after spending their honeymoon of several weeks at Nimrod Hall, in Bath county. Mrs. Wellford was formerly Miss Frances Myers, and her wedding, although quietly celebrated, was an important social event of last month.

At the Country Club.
Beginning this evening, there will be music at the Country Club from 7 until 11 o'clock three times a week. These concerts and informal dances, which formed such a delightful part of social life in town last summer, will be continued on Tuesday, Thursday and Saturday evenings, of each week during July and August. Numbers of pretty little dinners are given at the club nearly every night, and the introduction of music and dancing on these evenings in each week will make the clubhouse a very delightful place indeed.

The fourth will be celebrated at the Country Club by several small dinners and luncheons.

Miss Ames Engaged.
Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Blanchard Ames, of Boston, who are in Winchester for the summer, have announced the engagement of their daughter, Miss Katharine Ames, to George Lafayette Washington, son of Mr. and Mrs. George Blackburn Washington, of Charles Town, W. Va., and Woodbury, N. J.

The ceremony was performed by the Rev. W. Howard Callender, pastor of St. George's.

The church was beautifully decorated with white roses, palms, ferns and leaves. E. G. Ballinger, organist.

Staunton, Va., July 1.—The campaign for the quarter million dollar bond issue in South River District of Augusta county, embracing the towns of Waynesboro, East City and Fishersville, ends today, and the election takes place to-morrow, July 2. It seems to be generally conceded that the election will carry for the issue. Many of the same men who opposed the county bond issue, but not all of them, are opposing the issue. Leading citizens, however, who before were content the county issue would fail, now just as confident that the district issue will succeed.

NEW ASSESSMENT OF CORPORATIONS

Work Will Be Taken Up by North Carolina Commission This Week.

Raleigh, N. C., July 1.—The North Carolina Corporation Commission will take up this week the annual assessment of capital stock and corporate assets of the nearly five thousand commercial corporations in North Carolina, and also the supplementary assessment of the additions to railroad property since the general quadrennial assessment last year.

As giving some indication of the volume of this work, the 1911 assessment of railroads and other public service corporations was $129,452,247, and the assessed values of commercial corporations, banks and building and loan associations was $191,959,722, making a total of $321,411,969 in valuations and assessments that the Corporation Commission will have to review and submit in the form of a report.

The commission takes up this week a task that will require several weeks. In this connection it is of interest to note that Commissioner W. T. Lee is rapidly recording from the severe injuries he sustained at his home in Waynesboro two weeks ago when his horse ran away.

State Food Chemist W. M. Allen has gone to Seattle, Washington, state, to attend the annual convention of food chemists of the United States in session there during the next week. Mr. Allen is secretary of the national association, and Food Chemist Lucius Brown of Tennessee, is the president.

W. S. Wilson, corporation clerk in the Department of State, has gone to Portland, Ore., to attend the Supreme Court of the United States in session there during the next week.

Superintendent Z. V. Budd, of the Wake county public schools, presented his annual report to the county board of education today, the creditable show, his being made that during the seven years that he has been superintendent the value of school property has advanced from $50,000 to $150,000, and a gain of 1,200 in the enrollment. The average school term for the county is a little more than six months. There is extensive special tax districts that have more than seven months or more each.

W. W. Roberts, a well-known and popular young banker of this city, will retire from the position of teller of the Citizens National Bank on August 1 to take a position with the Farmers National Bank of Richmond. At least for a season he is to represent the Farmers Bank in a field capacity in North and South Carolina, and will move his family to Richmond for the present.

SUGGEST PLAN TO BREAK DEADLOCK
[Special to The Times-Dispatch.]
Fayetteville, N. C., July 1.—A plan for breaking the deadlock at Baltimore, based on the form of the national elections of the early days of the Republic was evolved in the annual meeting of the policyholders of the Lafayette Mutual Life Insurance Company, a local corporation, and set forth in the following telegram to Chairman Ollie James:

"The policyholders of the Lafayette Mutual Life Insurance Company at their annual meeting to-day passed a resolution requesting you to ask the Democratic National Convention to name Champ Clark and Woodrow Wilson as men to be chosen by the Democratic electors for President and Vice-President at the next general election, and to request the highest popular vote to be President, the other Vice-President."

A stick of dynamite and a match cost eleven-year-old Franklin Duncanson, from his left hand and his right thumb. The stick and match idea seemingly does not appeal to the youngster, so finding the dynamite near the Aberdeen and Rockfish Railroad, being built near his father's house, he carried it home and found a match. He is now in the Highsmith Hospital.

TWO MORE IN RACE
Councilman Ferguson and Commissioner Phillips Out for Administrative Board.

Councilman Edgar Ferguson cast his vote yesterday and announced his candidacy for the Administrative Board. He has been an active member of the City Council for some years, but did not offer for reelection last spring, expecting to re-enter public life. Recently many friends have urged him to enter the contest and his formal announcement was made just before the Council met last night. Having represented first Marshall and later Lee Ward in the lower branch, Mr. Ferguson is well known in both ends of the city. He is the head of a large firm of contracting printers and has a wide acquaintance among the business men of the city. His home is at 1011 West Franklin Street.

Another announcement of candidacy for the Administrative Board came yesterday from James E. Phillips, Jr., some years a member of the Board of Health, and an employing plumber who is well known in business circles. Formerly active in politics in Jefferson Ward, Mr. Phillips now makes his home at 106 East Clay Street, in Clay Ward. He has assurances of strong support in many quarters.

SPENDS ENTIRE DAY ON AEROPLANE TRIP

Queen Victoria First Woman of Sovereign Rank to Go Up in Machine.

BY LA MARQUESE DE FONTENAY.
LIEBEN VICTORIA OF SWEDEN, although such an invalid that she has never been able to spend a winter on her husband's domains, has been seen about the court of Stockholm for years together, in consequence of some nervous ailment, enjoy the distinction of being the first woman of sovereign rank to venture on an aerial trip. Two weeks ago she spent an entire day cruising above and around Baden-Baden in the ship "Schwaben." When passing over the royal chateau the Queen threw down a bouquet of roses, to which a note was attached addressed to her mother, the Dowager Grand Duchess Louise of Baden, only daughter of old Emperor William, his constant attendant during the last years of his life, and his companion in the carriage, Unter den Linden, when Napoleon shot and badly wounded him.

About a year ago people here and in Europe were greatly moved by the story of the pilgrimage of Miss Olive McLeod to the grave of her betrothed, Lieutenant Boyd Alexander, on the shores of Lake Teba, nearly 2,000 miles from the coast in Africa. The young lieutenant had been murdered by treacherous natives while holding the office of commissioner of the district. But now comes the news of her engagement to the man who was of so much assistance to her while traveling the dark continent, and who accompanied her during a portion of the trip, namely, Charles Lindsay Temple, one of the principal British officials of the most important of the empire.

Miss McLeod, who through her mother, Lady Agnes Norcliffe, is connected with the aristocracy and Hamilton Fish family of New York, is a daughter of the late Sir James McLeod, who has been Under Secretary of State for Scotland and Registrar-General for England, and Queen Victoria's Remembrancer for her reign.

Her betrothed, however, Miss McLeod, is the twenty-third child of the grand old Scottish "Clan MacLeod," who makes his home in ancient Dunvegan Castle, in the Isle of Skye.

Today the dominions of the McLeod of McLeod are limited to Skye, but there was a time in the thirteenth century when the chief of the clan was also king of the Isle of Man, having received its vassal sovereignty from Alexander III. of Scotland, to whom it had been surrendered by Magnus, King of Norway. This McLeod, King of Man and the Isles, married a daughter of the Earl of Ross, and it is from his son, McLeod, that the name direct, "Royal" McLeod, is derived.

It was founded at the beginning of the seventeenth century, was so called for his huge stature. His eldest son and heir, who was even bigger, played an important role as a defender of the cause of Charles I. who wrote to him from Burham a letter dated May 2, 1649, warmly thanking him for his services, which is still preserved as one of the most precious of his correspondence.

What is so remarkable about the unbroken descent of the line of chiefs from the thirteenth century to the present day is that the Duke of Devonshire had a rule, but few children—in many cases an only son. The eighteenth child, indeed, died without issue, and the succession passed to the posthumous son six months after his decease. The twentieth child of McLeod, Norman by name, won the title of Viscount, the first of his chief is his grandson, Miss McLeod's fiancé has received the Order of St. Michael and St. George, and other distinctions.

As the third son of the late Sir Richard Temple, who distinguished himself in India, serving for nearly forty years, and ending as Lieutenant-General, Bengal and Governor of Bombay. Fortunately for Miss Olive McLeod, he has a son, who is a member of the House of Commons, and his father's home, which was an extraordinary fact, his portraits presented the most striking likeness to Mr. Punch, as representing the cover of the famous comic weekly.

The McLeod of McLeod, by the by, in addition to his lordship over the Isle of Skye, likewise owns the Isle of St. Kilda, which is a small, rocky island, which is a very interesting place, much in the public eye on account of the alleged starving condition of the inhabitants. Indeed, it may be recalled that in 1821, when a general census was taken, the population was only 36, and the island was a desolate place.
